

The Energy and Sustainability Centre Isle of Man (ESC) is delighted to announce two new additions to the team.

Adrian Cowin, the former Senior Meteorological Officer in the Isle of Man Government, has joined as Scientific Director. He has extensive experience as an Operational Meteorologist from 1983 to 2023 and is the Island's foremost expert on weather and climate change with a keen interest on mitigating the impacts.

Tracey Fuller has joined as Secretary. She has worked in HR, as a financial adviser and as a vegetarian cook. She has also spent 20 years volunteering for a well-known national emotional support charity with roles as Branch Director for the Isle of Man and Regional Director for Northwest UK, giving Tracey an understanding of the issues around change and how it affects people.

Both Adrian and Tracey are tremendous assets to ESC as we focus on Island solutions for a low-carbon world.
